anid: The Germans has gained some ground, but they have not captured Tyres.

'In repulsing the enemy so far we have suffered heavy casualities, but battles of this fierce and prolonged nature cannot be but costly to both sides. We have the satisfaction of knowing that we have foiled the enemy in what appears to be at present his main object in the western theatre of operations, and have inflicted immensely greater losses on him than those we have suffered ourselves.

from our artillery and machine gun fire."

Theidentally, one of the houses held by the enemy was so knocked about by our fire that its defenders bolted. On their way to the rear they were met by reinforcements under an officer, who halted them, evidently in an endeavor to parsuade them to return. While the pariey was going on one of our machine guns was quietly moved to a position of vantage, whence it opened a most effective fire on the group.

"On our right one of the enemy's saps, which was being pushed toward our line, was attacked by us. All the men in it were captured.

"Wednesday, the lith, was another day of desperate fighting. As day broke the Germans opened fire on our trenches to the north and south of the road from Manin to Tpres. This was probably the most furious artillery fire which they have yet employed against us. A few hours later they followed this by an infantry assault in force.

GUARD CORPS SENT TO MAKE

GUARD CORPS SENT TO MAKE SUPREME EFFORT.

"This attack was carried out by the First and Fourth Brigades of the Guard Corps, which, as we now know from prisoness, had been sent for to make a supreme effort to capture Ypres, since that task had proved too heavy for the infantry of the line. "As the attackers surged forward they were met by our frontal fire, and since they were moved diagronally they were met by our frontal fire, and since they were moved diagonally across part of our front they were also attacked on the flank by artiliery, rifles and machine guns. Though their casualties before they reached our line must have been enormous, such was their resolution and the momentum of the mass that in spite of the spiendid resistance of our troops they succeeded in breaking through our line in three places near the road. "They penetrated some distance into the woods behind our tranches, but were counter-attacked again, andiaded by machine guns and driven back to their line of trenches, a certain portion of which they succeeded in holding, in spite of our efforts to expel them. What their total lesses must have been during this advance may be gauged to some extant from the fact that the number of dead left in the woods behind our line alone amounted to 702.

"A simultaneous effort made to the south, a part of the same operation, although not carried out by the Guard Corps, failed entirely, for when the attacking infantry massed in the woods close to our line, our guns opened on them with such effect that they did not push the assault home. As generally happens in operations in wooded country, the fighting to a great extent was carried on at close quarters. It was most desperate and confused. Scattered bodies of the enemy who had penetrated into the woods in the rear of our position could neither go backward or forward and GERMANS BLOWN UP BY MINES

"The portion of the line to the southeast of Ypres held by us was heavily shelled, but did not undergo any very serious infantry attack. That occupied by the French, however, was both bombarded and flercely assaulted. On the rest of our front, save for the usual bombardment, all was comparatively quiet. On the right one of our trenches was mined and then abandoned. As soon as it was occupied by the enemy the charges were fired and several Germans were blown to pieces.

ON FRENCH LINE.

"To carry on the narrative for three days of the 10th, 11th and 12th of November:

"Tuesday, the 10th, was uneventful for us. At some distance beyond our left flank the enemy advanced in force against the French and were repulsed. Directly on our left, however, along the greater part of the front, shelling was less severe, and ne infantry attacks took place."

"To the southeast of Types the enemy kept up a very heavy bombardment against our line, as well as that of the French. On our left centre the estuation remained unchanged, both sides contenting themselves with farious cannonading.
